

I am a member of NAB and also a STRONG SUPPORTER OF XM RADIO, and I have been since the very beginning. In addition to the excellent nationwide reception, the content of XM/satellite radio is superior to ANYTHING offered by local broadcasters. Their variety is unsurpassed, their "DJ" commentary less idiotic than that of local DJs, and their attempts to subvert commercially driven dictatorships have been mostly successful, thusfar.

If they want to increase their content by adding local information, it seems to me to be none of NAB's business -- or rather, that's the whole problem. FM/AM radio is as bad as it is becuae that is all it is.

Business. As usual.
